

Passport

Passport Today

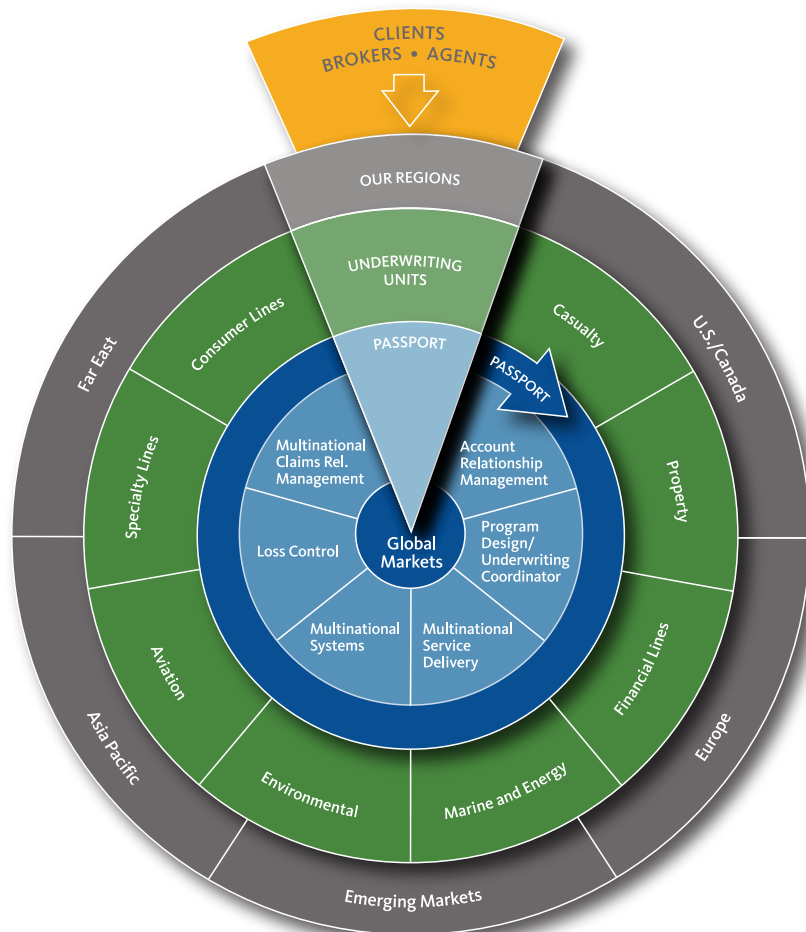

Chartis has been a leader in the multinational space for decades, starting with our offering standard property and casualty coverage for cross-border exposures and more recently introducing Passport for executive liability risks. Now in 2010, Chartis has extended its Passport platform to cover the entire end-to-end process of managing worldwide risk for virtually the full suite of products and value-add services you need as a multinational organization.

Whether you have operations and exposures in two countries or 102, you should have confidence that your insurance company can expertly execute and service your program — from underwriting, policy administration, data management and account servicing, through loss control and, ultimately, to paying claims — wherever you operate today, and everywhere opportunity takes you tomorrow. With Passport, Chartis' multinational platform, your confidence is well placed.

Understanding Global Markets

As a result of the integration of Chartis' premier international general insurance businesses and its U.S. commercial insurance operations, and its intense focus on multinational initiatives, Chartis formed the Global Markets division to manage its extension of Passport as a service platform for multinational customers. Global Markets' sole focus is to harness the deep underwriting and service expertise of Chartis to deliver a seamless multinational offering for you. Global Markets will ensure that Passport connects all key components of Chartis, including: account relationship management, multinational program setup, service, data management, systems and claims. Passport will also coordinate with Chartis' underwriting units worldwide to deliver locally tailored insurance policies and risk management programs virtually anywhere you need them.
