

A Virtual World of Risk Management Resources, All In One Program

RiskTool System

We are proud to offer the RiskTool System to our environmental policyholders as a complementary benefit of being a Chartis policyholder. The RiskTool System consolidates important environmental, safety and health risk management resources into one easy-to-use system, allowing policyholders to:

- Track the latest changes in regulatory compliance
- Adopt environmental, health and safety best practices as well as new loss prevention technology
- Set up and monitor risk management program components such as Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS), facility audits and motor fleet safety requirements
- Keep employees and managers informed and trained with company-wide message postings, online training programs and coordination of self audits
- Create instant risk alerts that give key personnel information they need to manage potential loss situations

Get Up-To-Date with the Laws and Regulations

Keeping up with constantly changing EH&S regulations is a complex task. RiskTool System eliminates the need to search through the multitude of governmental regulatory sites by providing an organized layout of approximately 6,000 links to environmental, health and safety resources. You can quickly and efficiently search databases within websites of federal, state and international governmental agencies. Customized information searches pertinent to your company are also a RiskTool System benefit.

Monitor Your Resources

Managing risk requires maintaining vital information. RiskTool System's databases allow you to:

- Monitor critical motor fleet information such as vehicle maintenance, driver performance and training
- Setup, track and record employee environmental, health and safety training
- Use RiskTool System templates to create, conduct and analyze environmental, health and safety audits
- Record and file environmental compliance reports

What Do You Want To Do Today?

Review your chemical inventory?
Generate an environmental report?

Conduct an audit?

Train employees about a particular environmental, health and safety risk?

With RiskTool, you can do all of this from the convenience of any device with an Internet connection—any time of the day, any day of the year.

Maximize Your Expertise

Become a leader in risk assessment by detecting areas of concern before they become accidents. From any Web-connected computer, you can:

- Access critical environmental, health and safety risk information
- Issue risk alerts to employees about environmental, health and safety conditions specific to a facility and its operations
- RiskTool System users can design training programs using system templates for virtually any environmental, health and safety risk topic—from handling toxic materials to exiting safely during a fire incident
- Help improve company-wide environmental, health and safety knowledge and proficiency

Filing A Government Report

RiskTool System enables users to complete common government reports in a few simple steps, cutting out hours of online research and paperwork.

For example, a Tier II chemical inventory form requires registering specific data about every hazardous chemical you use. That could take many employee hours of research and data entry.

With RiskTool System, it is three simple steps:

- Click on a direct link to the Tier II form itself
- Call up site-specific information about each toxic substance that you have previously entered—including quantity, purpose, location, and specific chemical data—in exactly the format that the Tier II form requires.
- Transfer that data directly to the form

RiskTool System provides a comprehensive, customized online risk management system, and it's included free with every environmental policy issued through Chartis. Join the more than 8,000 companies that already use the RiskTool System to improve their knowledge and management of environmental, health and safety risks.

RiskTool - Be Prepared. Be Informed. Be Effective.
